TOP cancelled khue 11L tigger 8M PEOPLE OF THIS

YEAR. In this article, we are counting down the top recent instances where cancel culture strikes again (in no particular order); best read in a "WatchMojo" voice.

I. why does Kanye have to appear on every 'cancel list'?

Kanye West. Ye. The man is known for many things; his grammy awards, being the ex-husband of the renowned model, Kim Kardashian, etc. But what he is most known for is his many controversies. Ye has the amazing ability to get himself into every "cancelled celebrities" list, including many in 2022. Now, he's in this one...

On the 3rd of October 2022, a picture of Ye wearing a "White Lives Matter" T-shirt at a private show - for 100 guests during Paris Fashion Week - was leaked to the public. In response to the Black Lives Matter movement, the slogan was criticized by many as being a fascist rallying cry.

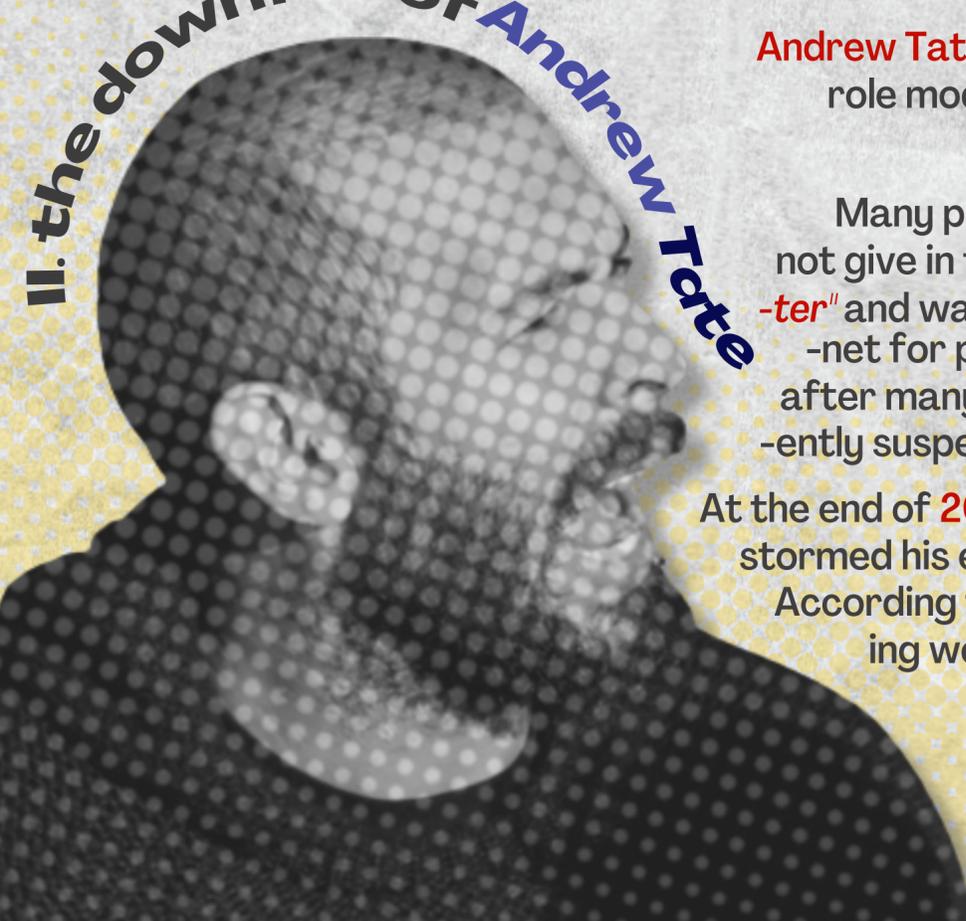

It gets worse...

In the days following, Ye proceeded to post anti-Semitic comments on Instagram and Twitter, many of which were later removed as it violated the platform's policies. In one of the deleted posts, Ye stated he would soon go "Death Con 3 on Jewish People". His Tweet outraged many social media users, as being "very-unsettling, harmful and antisemitic". Thus, Ye was locked of his Twitter account; His Instagram account was also banned. Later, his ex wife Kim would come out with a Twitter statement, disapproving of his actions.

Sometimes, it is almost as if Kanye West is paving the path to his own, gradual downfall. Nonetheless, the public can't seem to get enough of his bald head and chains.

II. the downfall of Andrew Tate

Andrew Tate was every annoying, sticky and obnoxious 12-year-old boy's role model. I am sure everyone has seen some of the 'derogatory' and 'misogynistic' things the "internet sensation" has openly said.

Many people expressed their criticism towards him, yet he still would not give in to the hate, saying that he was just "playing a comedic character" and was "taken out of context and amplified." He also blamed the Internet for portraying him as someone who was "anti-women". In addition, after many, many out-of-pocket, controversial tweets, Twitter permanently suspended his account and he was banned from most social media.

At the end of 2022, Andrew Tate was arrested in Romania, where authorities stormed his estate and accused him of association with human trafficking. According to Romanian police, there is reason to think that Tate is harming women and others. Nevertheless, Tate and his army of pre-pubescent boys will continue to fight for this controversial icon's freedom.

III. our favourite Hollywood mean girls

This year, Selena Gomez faced hate and body-shaming comments after paparazzi photos of her in a bikini were released. After, Hailey Bieber posted a TikTok of her and friends lip-syncing to an audio, leading users to believe they were joining on the surge of hate towards Selena. Though Hailey removed it, the video was re-posted many times - but Hailey states that the video was not directed at anyone.

Selena, Kylie and Hailey Bieber were all reportedly mock-ing each other online. However, Kylie Jenner replied to a TikTok, denying all shady accusations. This led to Selena replying to Kylie, saying "All of it is unnecessary. I am a fan of Kylie!" #killthemwithkindness

A fan war has started, many fans of the girls are starting to take sides. Some fans have even thrown out their Kylie Cosmetic and Rhode Skin products, showing their loyalty towards Selena and her brand, Rare Beauty.

What do you think? does this deserve a new page in the burn book?

IV. Balenciaga (bal-ancing multiple cases)

Late last year, Balenciaga released some "controversial" ad campaigns of their Balenciaga Gift Shop, with images of little girls holding some of the brand's bags. This may seem completely normal, as there is nothing wrong with a little girl holding luxury brand bags. However, the bags had a ... questionable design that were DEFINITELY not kid-friendly. One photo in the campaign also reportedly featured court documents from a child's sexual abuse case.

Hashtags #cancelBalenciaga and #burnBalenciaga became popular on TikTok and Instagram. Several claimed that the company supported pedophilia and child exploitation. Many influencers and celebrities have also begun to critique the brand and revoking their partnerships with Balenciaga. Even icon Cardi B stated that she liked the brand, especially "the ones that look like socks." But following disastrous marketing campaigns, a large portion of society has abandoned and rejected the company.

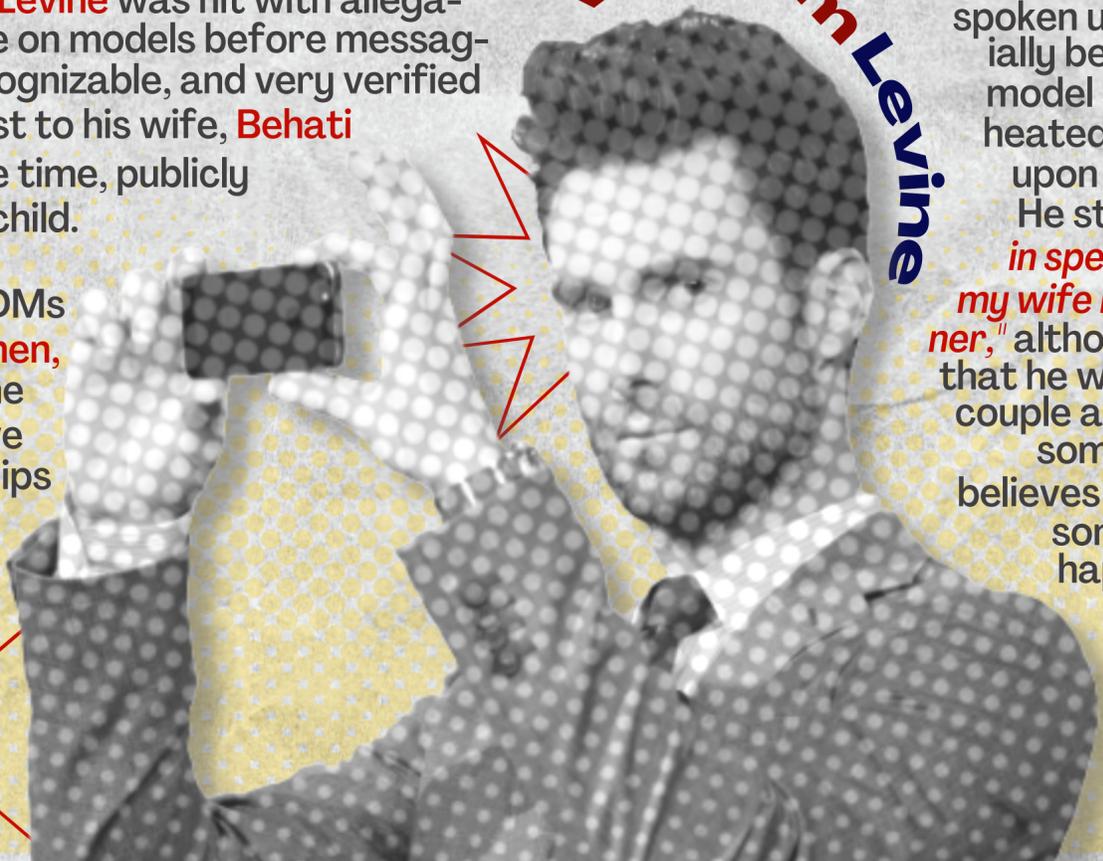

A familiar face arose, with backlash following behind Maroon 5 singer, Adam Levine was hit with allegations of landing his taste on models before messaging them on his very recognizable, and very verified account. All unbeknownst to his wife, Behati Prinsloo, who was at the time, publicly pregnant with his third child.

Through the Instagram DMs he share with other women, many of the women came forward, claiming to have inappropriate relationships with the singer.

Sugar?
no thanks.

V. Adam Levine

As of right now, the girls that have spoken up tally to at least 3, potentially being more; one of them was model Sumner Stroh. Due to these heated accusations, Levine took it upon himself to issue a response. He stated, "I used poor judgement in speaking with anyone other than my wife in any kind of flirtatious manner," although Levine refuses to admit that he was cheating. Right now, the couple are still in a relationship, with some saying that Prinsloo truly believes Levine. It seems, just like his song, 'Memories', Levine's prior happy marriage is now a mere memory. Even now, Levine is cheating on a Victoria Secret model. No one is safe anymore!

VI. Genshin people are built-different

Recently, the voice actor for Tighnari, Elliot Gindi, was 'exposed' for several actions that many deemed 'disgusting'. To name a few, Gindi was accused of pedophilia and guilt-tripping his fans (who were mostly minors).

In other words, he was gaslighting, gatekeeping but not girl-bossing.

There were additional conflicts about him overall displaying homophobia towards his audience, and would repeatedly live stream (in his underwear - bro was wilding) and encourage homophobic and transphobic ideologies to his younger audience.

Frantic and scared of his actions coming to light, Gindi nuked his entire Discord server to get rid of any evidence that could be used against him; The true embodiment of desperation. Yet his effort was to no avail, the accusations were eventually proven to be true by his Discord moderator.

Though Gindi tweeted that he plans to return after 'taking some time off and seeing a therapist,'. It seems quite final that Elliot Gindi will never reach such success in the industry again. No amount of therapy could help him anyways.

VII. the Mann, the myth, the legend

Dhar Mann, a huge content creator of 17.8 million subscribers on YouTube and 29 million followers on Facebook, recently went under fire for allegedly mistreating his workers.

Mann is known for uploading 'motivational' and 'life-lesson' based mini skits (quite ironically so) which averaged around 2 million views and got regularly reposted on social media platforms. In short, Dhar's content was extremely popular and were well-received by all ages ever since his channel started in 2018

Up until recently, many of Dhar Mann's most well known actors have broken out in protest, stating how Mann has been refusing to properly pay them from the start of his, and their careers. Actors claimed that they weren't receiving 'adequate living wages', despite working 12-15 hour long days. Some even claimed that they had to pay for their own wardrobe for his skits.

As of now, Dhar Mann has responded to this controversy with a video, stating that he "does not care for his actors", which only doubled the hate he was receiving. To quote a few of his iconic videos, 'So you see? Whatever happens in the dark, always comes to light'.

At the end of the day, we are all just people on the internet violating the "don't talk to strangers" rule. We are all just human beings. We all make mistakes. Some have worthy consequences for their mistakes. Yet in the long run, will any of this stay truly relevant?

You never know, maybe one day you or a close one could end up on one of these lists...

Hatsune Miku has a husband?!

I'm sure most have heard of the most popular Vocaloid singer, Hatsune Miku. The world-famous Vocaloid singer is most notable for her cute appearance, high and sweet singing voice and the fact she's drawn in anime-style brought more and more fans to like her, especially the younger audience.

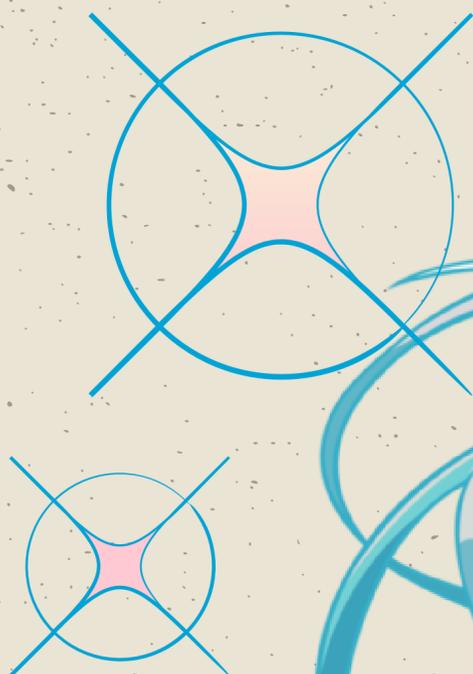

Hatsune Miku is the first-second generation Vocaloid software and became popular after appearing on a Nico Nico Douga website in 2007, not even a year after Hatsune Miku was created by Sasaki Wataru from Crypton Future Media, Inc.

Since her creation, we have seen Hatsune Miku in countless ads, collaborations and merch. Her color palette and design are instantly recognizable among young people, and her voice has been used in many hit songs

So what's this whole virtual marriage thing about?

So, what's the reason behind the marriage of Akihiko Kondo and Vocaloid singer Hatsune Miku? Well, Akihiko Kondo first found comfort in Hatsune Miku in 2008, a year after her popular release. The reason why he found comfort in her was because at his job he would get bullied and the bullying sent him through a deep void called depression. He had long decided that he would never find a real person to love and feel comfortable with. After finding Hatsune Miku he would soon write songs using Hatsune Miku as a software and would purchase a stuffed doll of her. This would soon lead to 10 years of Akihiko and Hatsune Miku dating.

However, after 10 years of playing around with Hatsune Miku as a software, buying plenty of merchandise of Hatsune Miku and "loving" her, there was a major breakthrough in their relationship. For the first time in 10 years, Akihiko Kondo could finally interact and talk to Hatsune Miku. This happened in 2017 thanks to a Gatebox. This Gatebox would cost 1,300k US dollars. A year after buying this Gatebox, Akihiko Kondo proposed to Hatsune Miku's hologram. What she said in response was "Please treat me well." Implying that Miku had accepted his proposal.

Kondo happily spends everyday with his Miku

Akihiko Kondo also identifies as fictiosexual, meaning he's only attracted to fictional characters. He wants to use his own marriage with Hatsune Miku to further raise awareness for other young Japanese people who may identify like him and are getting into relationships with fictional characters.

However, 4 years after his marriage proposal to Miku, their marriage would hit a block. During the COVID-19 pandemic, Gatebox announced that they were discontinuing its service for the character Hatsune Miku. However, even after Akihiko Kondo could no longer interact and speak to Hatsune Miku, according to him, his feelings for Hatsune Miku did not lessen. He has said that his feelings for Miku would not change and he plans to be faithful to her until he dies.

Although only a holographic projection, they converse daily

So basically,

38-year-old man unofficially marries a popular Vocaloid singer named Hatsune Miku, who is supposedly forever 16 years old. This year would be their 5th year of being married. Overall, we believe that people can love who they want, as long as it isn't illegal.

The Book Thief by Marsuk Zusak

The Book Thief is a historical fiction about Liesel Meminger, a foster child living in Nazi Germany. Later in the book, it is seen that her foster family made a decision that changed her life forever. The story is also narrated by Death, a character that most people come to respect and feel sorry for at the end. Because of its unique perspective and beautiful writing, The Book Thief has won the hearts of its audiences as well as becoming an international bestseller.

Beloved by Toni Morrison

Beloved is a 1987 novel written by American novelist, Toni Morrison. The book is set after the American Civil War and tells the story of a dysfunctional family of formerly enslaved people, whose home has been haunted by the spirit of a dead daughter. Beloved uses mostly flashbacks and storytelling which gives the story a loose structure and makes the audience feel like they are putting together pieces of puzzles. Not only that, but the book centers on freedom and the desires to be loved.

Wonder by R.J Palacio

Wonder is a children's novel telling the story of Auggie, a 5th grader, who was born with a rare facial difference that prevented him from attending a mainstream school. He wanted nothing more than to be treated as an ordinary kid, but his new classmates couldn't get over his unique face.

STRAY KIDS COMEBACK

² Many of their fans have been anticipating this comeback, after the first album trailer, teased way back in December of the previous year, leaving many wondering where Stray Kids would be taking their artistic direction next. The title track of the album, aptly named 'The Sound' was released on January 27th almost a full month before the full album dropped and sparked a lot of discussion between fans, online and offline, those conversations mostly being something along the lines of "OMG I LOVE STRAY KIDS SO MUCH". Along with promotional material, another song from the album, "There" was released, in visual teaser form. Finally, after much waiting, we officially got the full release of the album on the 22nd of February.

³ Onto the tracks themselves, boy, did 3racha eat with this one! Listening to the entirety of the album in one sitting, you get a sort of "emotional whiplash" from the variation in mood in-between songs.

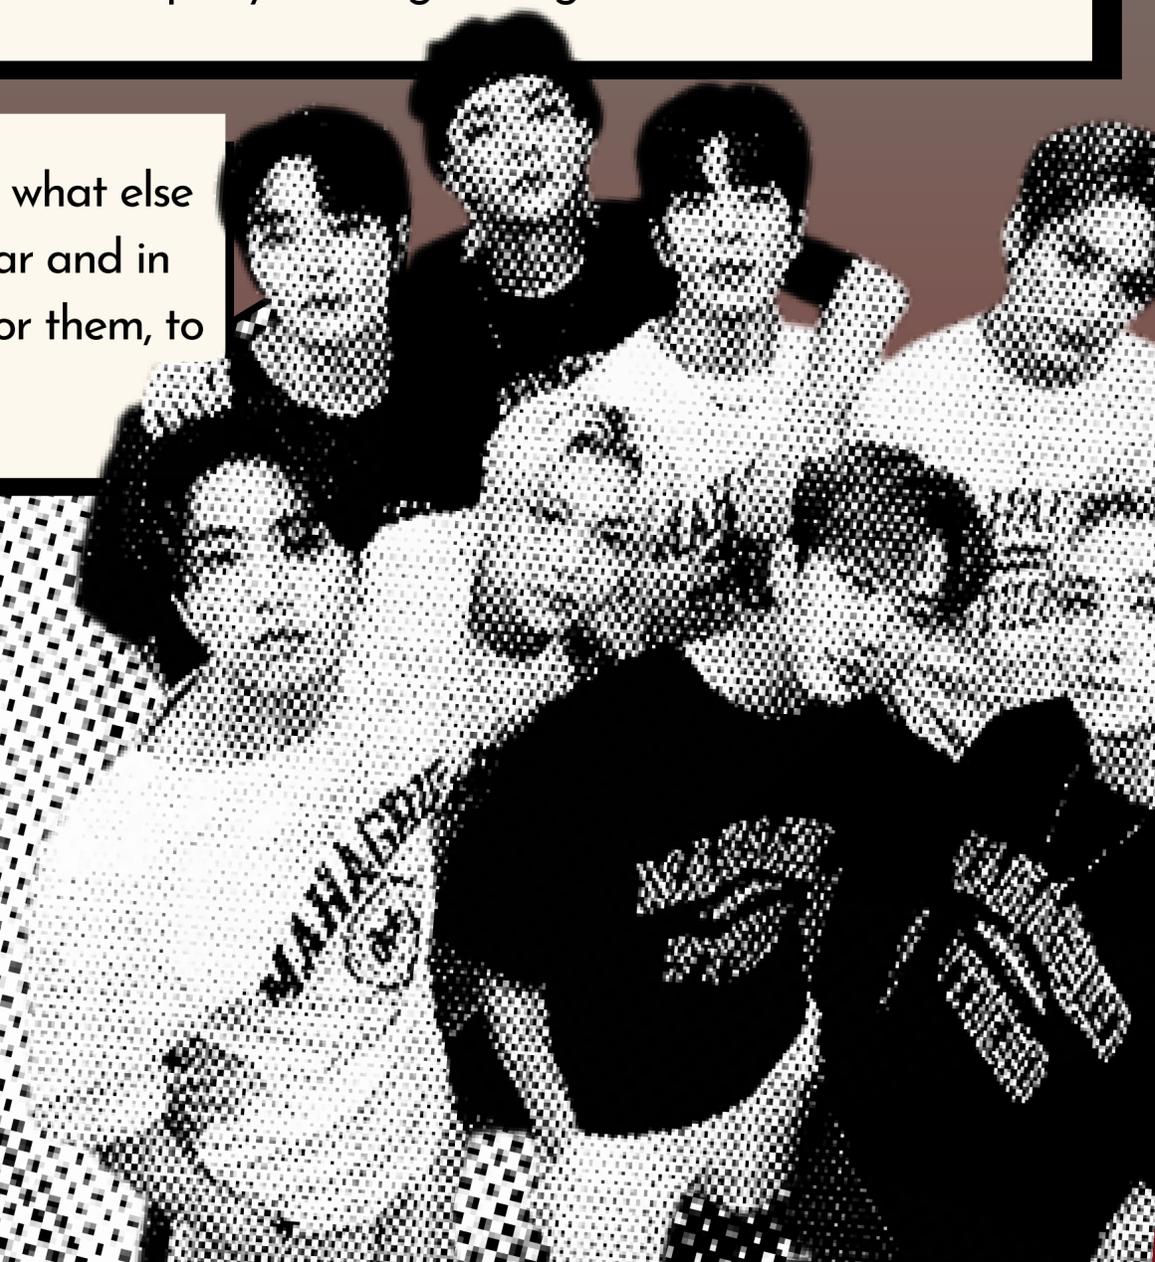

6 The album then diverges into a specific category of Stray kids songs, the ones in which their previous tracks 'Drive', 'Red Lights' and 'Taste' belong to, which isn't that much of a surprise since member Hyunjin, who is more famous for these types of songs had a hand in the creation of this track. It's a brooding message wrapped in a not-so-brooding melody and vocal delivery, in 'DLMLU'.

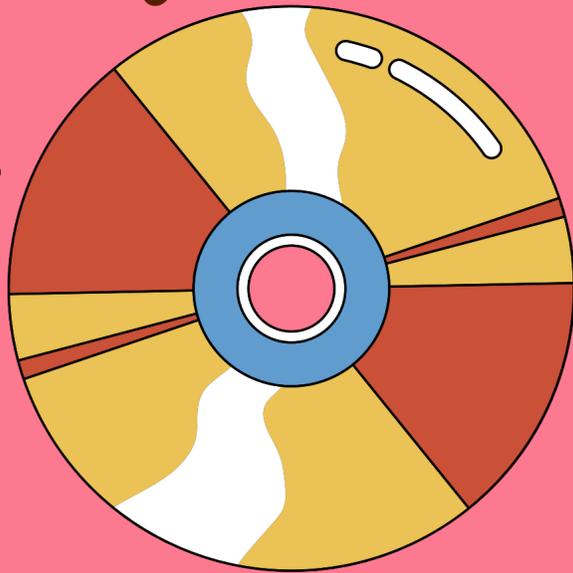

7 We complete the mood cycle with "feel good" Stray Kids, in the track, 'Novel', with participation by member Seungmin in writing, where we see picturesque melodies and ideas coagulating in a happy sludge that one can indulge in when they're feeling down. The rest of the album contains the Japanese versions of previous Korean releases: 'Case 143', 'Chill', and 'Thunderous' as well as a re-release of a previous Japanese single 'Scars'. The album leaves us with 'There', a calming ballad - and an equally calming ending to this album.

8 2023 has only just begun, and who knows what else Stray Kids will continue to release this year and in the years to follow, and we'll stay waiting for them, to continue creating their music.

Leonardo DiCaprio's next move: A wild hypothesis

Leonardo DiCaprio; the man, the myth, the legend. Many might remember him for his iconic roles in household films such as Jack Dawson, the boyish love interest of Titanic, or as Mr. Gatsby, the Great Gatsby's namesake. However, in recent times, his fame has been less attributed to his diverse roster of films and crazy career, but to his peculiar dating habits.

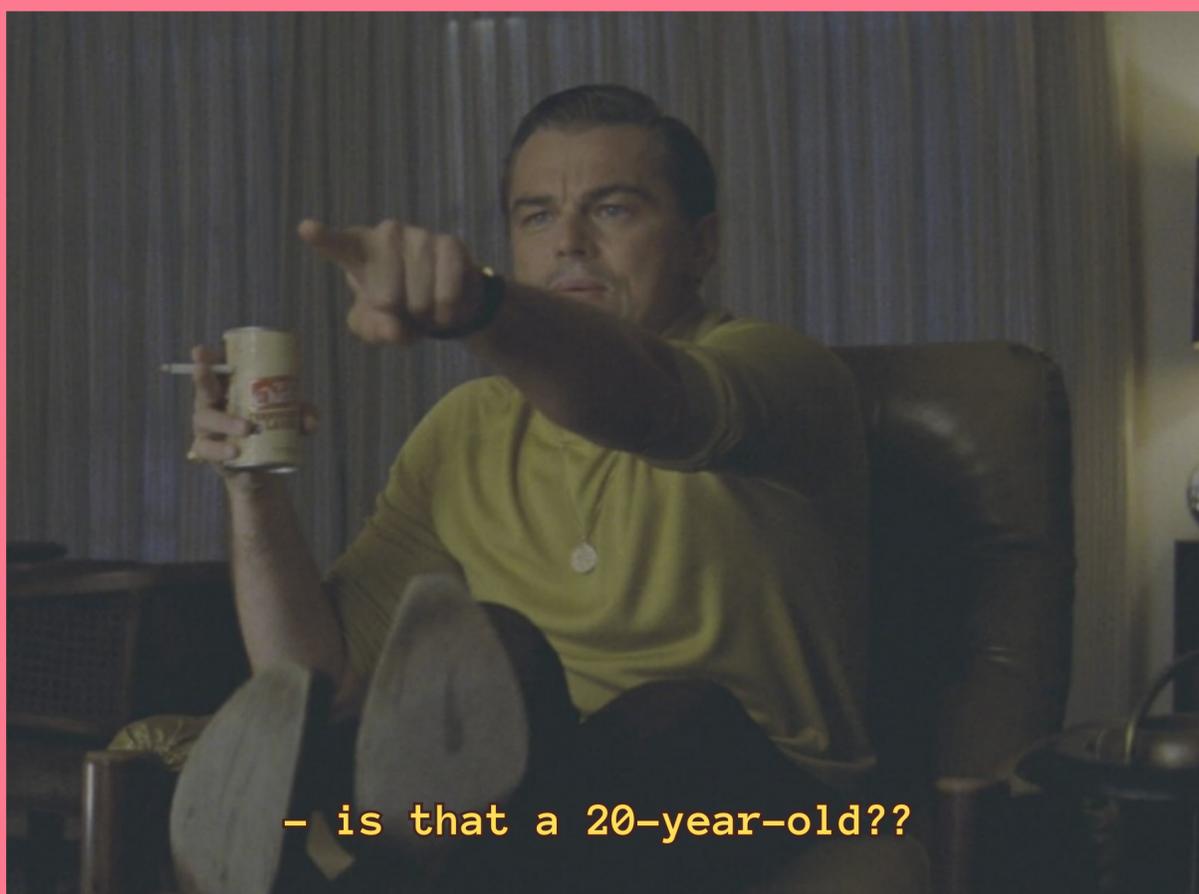

Contextual Knowledge

The infamous “Leonardo DiCaprio girlfriend” curse has been a running joke online since the start of the new decade and has recently seen a resurgence in interest, when Leo was spotted with Eden Polani, a 19 year-old Israeli model. This sighting sparked outrage online, and saw a rise in interest of relating search terms, according to a quick search on Google Trends.

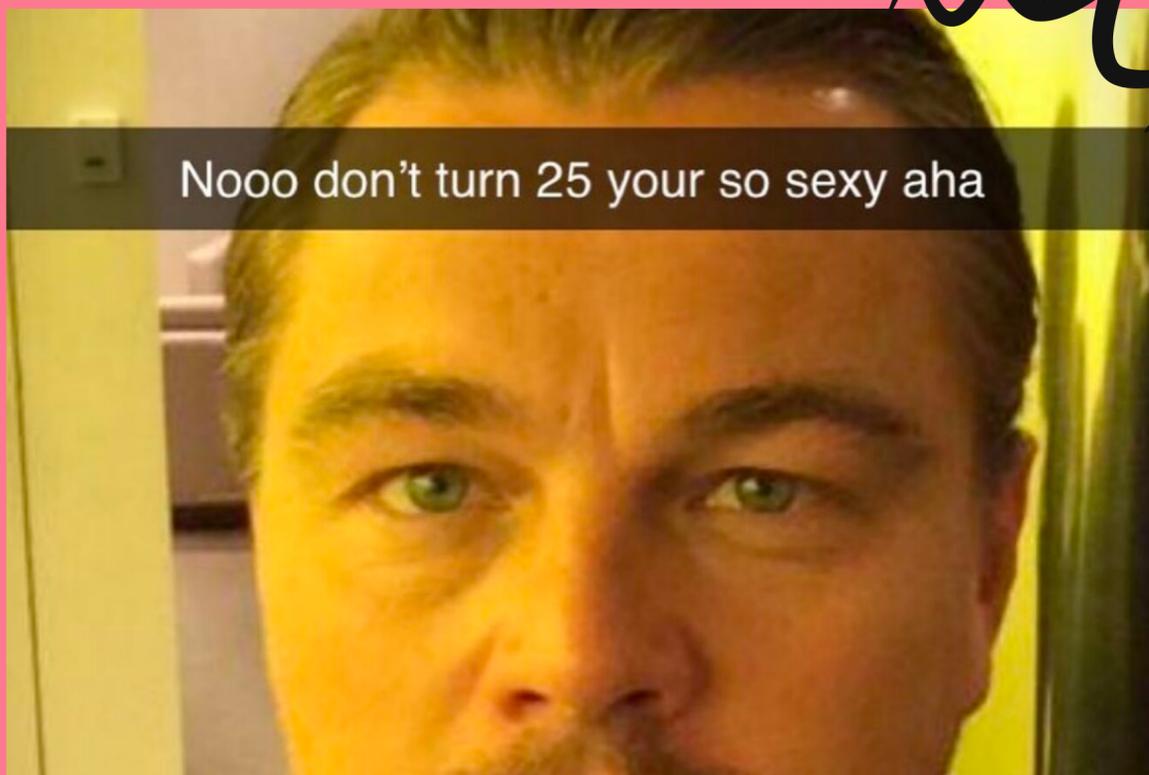

The increased coverage and discussion about Leo’s girlfriends - past and present - led me down a deep dark rabbit hole: Was there a way to predict the next 'Leonardess'? I endeavored to get to the bottom of this using the Scientific Method.

Research Method

Predictions, conjecture, wild speculation are all based on reality. However, I did not want my predictions to be riddled in bias; therefore, I had to come up with a game plan. Statistics on DiCaprio's girlfriends of christmas past, present, and future had to be collected first, then would a pattern arise and true analysis begin.

Firstly, I had to create a criteria for a Leonardess; that is, the relationship would have to last for at least a month, with substantial evidence to back it up. The Leonardess could, however, be a relationship in between other relationships, with on-and-off-again status. With that loose set of criteria in mind, I began to compile data and statistics from several news outlets and paparazzi gossip websites. Then with the data, I calculated the average length of his relationships, and what that would mean when taking his and Eden Polani's current relationship into account, to predict the next Leonardess spotting.

Data Analysis

DiCaprio's relationships, on average, last a duration of 20 months; if his current relationship were to be roughly this length then the next 'Leonardess' could perhaps appear sometime in late 2024. However, there could be a possibility of a "Bachelor era", in which DiCaprio would be single for an extended period of time, having only casual flings- the longest of these lasting 4 years - which would extend the time period to somewhere in 2028. This gives us a range of time: between 2024 to 2028 for a potential new girlfriend to appear.

What needed to be calculated next was the age range and year of birth that the potential 'Leonardess' could be in. Referring to the chart that I've compiled below, we can see that the youngest age of the girl at the start of the relationship is 19 (counting from after he reached adulthood), and the oldest his girlfriend could be when they break up is around 26 years old.

Girlfriend	GF's age at the start	Age at the end
Bridget Hall	17	18
Kristen Zang	21	25
Amber Valletta	25	25
Eva Herzigova	26	26
Gizelle Budchen	19	25
Bar Rafeali	24	26
Anne Vyalitsnya	23	23
Blake Lively	24	24
Erin heatherton	22	24
Toni Garn	21	22
Kelly Rohrbach	24	25
Nina Adgal	24	25
Camilla Monroe	20	25
Eden Polani	19

- damn, she's turning 25

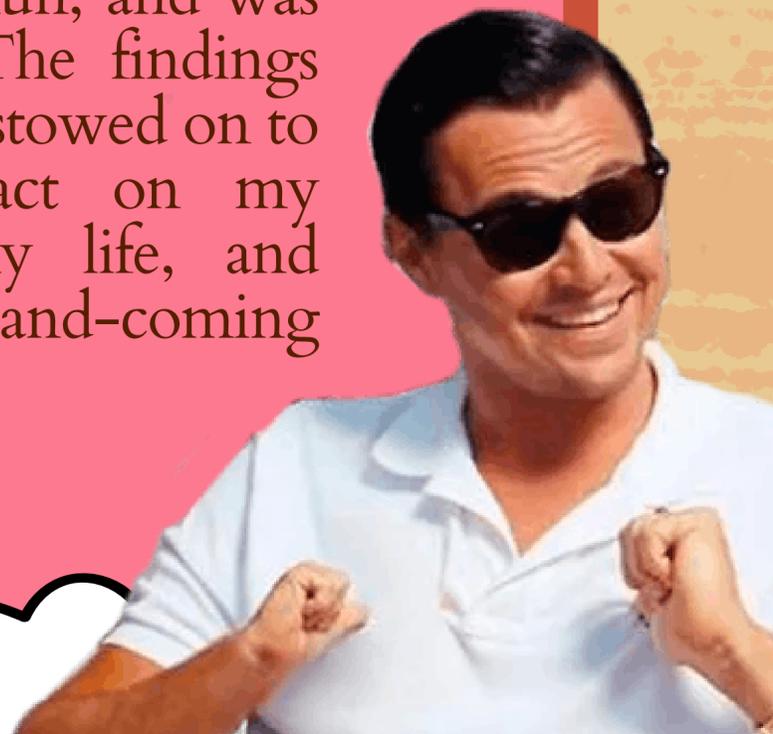

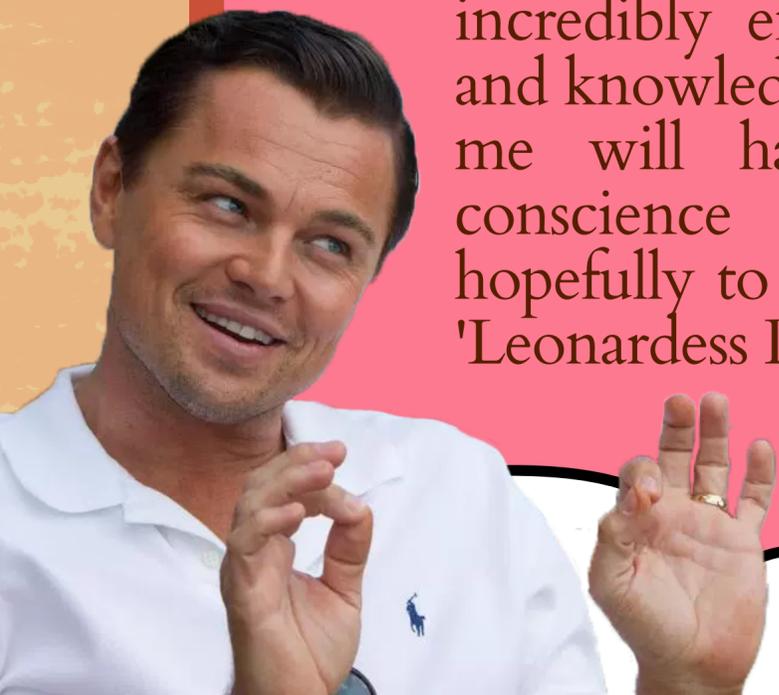

General Conclusions

Though most have heard of the '25 year age cap' that DiCaprio allegedly enforces on his girlfriend; even if there is suspicious correlation between the age that a woman's prefrontal cortex matures and Leo's age rule - unrelated to the problem at hand, but important nonetheless. If we were to follow this rule, then in 2024, girls in between the years 2005 and 1998 could potentially be the new 'DiCapriqueen'. I've further expanded my calculations for up to 2028 (the furthest range for his next potential partner).

Year	Minimum year	Maximum year	Leo's Age
2024	2005	1998	50
2025	2006	1999	51
2026	2007	2000	52
2027	2008	2001	53
2028	2009	2002	54

Therefore, in Renaissance, girls from year 7 to year 13 could be a runner-up for the title of the next "Leonardo DiCaprio's suspiciously young girlfriend". This fact has caused quite an expansive divide in opinions among the people.

In the end, this was all in good fun, and was incredibly entertaining to do. The findings and knowledge that have been bestowed on to me will have a lasting impact on my conscience for the rest of my life, and hopefully to yours as well, as up-and-coming 'Leonardess DiCapriqueens'.

Toilet-bound Hanako-Kun

WRITTEN BY : RIKA 8S

Everyone's favourite toilet anime is getting a reboot??

After years of waiting, anticipation, and hope, Toilet Bound Hanako Kun has finally announced more content for its viewers. Although there hasn't been an official release date, it has been announced that it isn't a season two but instead a reboot of the first season.

Now, many fans have asked for a season two, however, manga readers agree that Toilet Bound Hanako Kun was horrendously done during the first season. In the original -first season-, many plot points and chapters were skipped and some chapters were rearranged from the order of the manga.

So what actually happened with the first season?

Entirely different manga arcs such as "The Three Clock Keepers" and "The Young exorcist" arc were skipped. The skipping of these important arcs basically destroyed the entire storyline of the Toilet Bound Hanako kun anime. The reason for this is because in "The Young exorcist" arc it contained a plot point of a potential antagonist, making the entire story fumble. For "The Three Clock" arc they missed out important developments in a character. Thus, another big plot point and hint to how the story will end would cease to exist in the anime. Once again, ruining the entire storyline of the series.

Toilet-bound Hanako-Kun

WRITTEN BY : RIKA 8S

And there's more....

Some arcs were split in half and not done in chronological order of the manga. An example of this would be "The Little Mermaid", which had its story arc split in half, making sections of its narrative in episode 7 while half of the other arc in episode 12. This was not as bad as skipping arcs, however, this would cause a weird timeline if the animation company had continued from that point onward.

Many 'Toilet Bound Hanako Kun' fans are disappointed that the anime will not be getting a season two but instead a reboot of season one.

However, one could argue that without a reboot of the events in manga order, season two would never come. The 'Toilet Bound Hanako Kun' fandom is torn and the opinions are split. Either way, many fans are still excited and will be waiting for more announcements on the anime's reboot, because they're desperate for more content.

DEADLINE

STUDY CAFES

Exam season is coming up for all of us, and considering the extra workload on top of that, binging half of your fridge's stock isn't going to cut it. So what better way to prepare yourself, then to find your ideal study space in a local coffee shop nearby. Therefore, we bestow upon you a carefully curated list of coffee shops-each with its own unique atmosphere for every student out there

Whether you are looking for a cosy and comfortable vibe or a lively atmosphere with some background noise, each coffee shop has its own unique atmosphere and offerings that cater to different individuals. So pick the best option for you, and slay your way through the season..

AWESOME COFFEE

For those who enjoy a quiet, cosy atmosphere and ambient lighting, this is the place for you. It's also very friendly to tech users in need of charging spaces. The drinks, although leaves quite a big dent in your wallet, are rich and will bless your tastebuds (especially the hot chocolate & the hot cinnamon latte). There is also ample table space for group study sessions (an excuse for an extensive gossiping session), along with couches that are available for one-person study sessions and for those who really need them.

THE WORKSHOP SPECIALTY CAFE

As the name suggests, the Workshop specializes in coffee which will keep you awake throughout your study session. However, other drinks are also available for our non-caffeine lovers out there. Besides the impressive selection of drinks, they offer some delectable meals for anyone who's intending to stay for long periods of time. Spaces vary from big tables for larger group study sessions to tables for those running a one-man show.

RANG RANG COFFEE

Rang Rang coffee is the perfect coffee shop to keep yourself awake as nearly half of everything there is metallic, which if I learnt anything in physics, metallic surfaces tend to conduct thermal energy quite well. Therefore, it will keep you awake via the coolness of the metal surfaces flowing directly onto your skin, which is effective for keeping that grindset on. You could literally find this coffee shop in every single corner of the city, so it's extremely convenient.

CAFE DEN DA

Since the coffee shop is open for 24h, it laughs, loves, and lives for students who really need to complete that one assignment conveniently due at 11:59 pm; a deadline which determines one's relationship with their teachers for the rest of the year. Not only are the drinks and desserts quite affordable, the area around also provides a variety of food options. Being 3 stories high and offers a variety of seating, and a nice view of the outside.

~~LUIA CAFE~~

The perfect place for any sweet tooth, pastries range from mini scones to entire cheesecakes. Luia, district 7 offers some scrumptious sweet and savory treats for those who'd like to reward themselves after a long study session. Since natural lighting comes from 3 sides of the building, it provides a bright atmosphere, with charger friendly seating for group and individual study sessions. However, drinks are quite over price for the quality, so we recommend spending more on the pastries.

~~CAFE SLOW~~

The early birds that are trying to find the best place for early morning study, this place is fit for you. Cafe Slow is ideal for one person-study sessions, with both outdoor and indoor spaces and a quiet atmosphere, allowing for the perfect place for concentration. For coffee lovers, the drinks are so good you would literally inhale the cup, if you don't mind smaller spaces. The cafe is cozy, yet spacious and pretty for all the lovers of beautiful things everywhere.
